Approved For Release 2007/03/20 10/10/PDP91-00682R000200120135-1

Journal

Office of Legislative Counsel

Wednesday - 2 March 1955

Senator Douglas (D., Ill.) regarding the case of a rejected job applicant. Mr. Reynolds pointed out that the job for which was an applicant was filled by someone considered to be of better calibre, and that family background, as well as his own background at the made him a borderline case from an administrative point of view and that therefore he had finally been rejected. Mr. McCulloch asked us if we could furnish them with a letter stating that we had found a better qualified candidate for the job in question and that rejection did not involve any question of loyalty. He felt that this would ease	1. Mr. Reynolds and I talked with Frank McCulloch, Assistant to	25X1A an applicant was filled by someone considered to be of better calibre, and that family background, as well as his own background at the made him a borderline case from an administrative point of view and that therefore he had finally been rejected. Mr. McCulloch asked us if we could furnish them with a letter stating that we had found a better qualified candidate for the job in question and that rejection did not involve any question of loyalty. He felt that this would ease the situation materially in aiding to get other employment. Mr. 25X1/4 McCulloch pointed out that neither he nor the Senator ever desired to pressure agencies and CIA in particular for positions, and that therefore they forwarded such correspondence normally by buckslip. If the case ever involves someone concerning whom they had particularly favorable knowledge or felt particularly qualified, they would probably telephone or write		25X1A that made him a borderline case from an administrative point of view and that therefore he had finally been rejected. Mr. McCulloch asked us if we could furnish them with a letter stating that we had found a better qualified candidate for the job in question and that rejection did not involve any question of loyalty. He felt that this would ease the situation materially in aiding to get other employment. Mr. 25X1/4 McCulloch pointed out that neither he nor the Senator ever desired to pressure agencies and CIA in particular for positions, and that therefore they forwarded such correspondence normally by buckslip. If the case ever involves someone concerning whom they had particularly favorable knowledge or felt particularly qualified, they would probably telephone or write	job applicant. Mr. Reynolds pointed out that the job for which was made him a borderline case from an administrative point of view and that therefore he had finally been rejected. Mr. McCulloch asked us if we could furnish them with a letter stating that we had found a better qualified candidate for the job in question and that rejection did not involve any question of loyalty. He felt that this would ease the situation materially in aiding to get other employment. Mr. 25X1/2000 McCulloch pointed out that neither he nor the Senator ever desired to pressure agencies and CIA in particular for positions, and that therefore they forwarded such correspondence normally by buckslip. If the case ever involves someone concerning whom they had particularly favorable knowledge or felt particularly qualified, they would probably telephone or write	an applicant was filled by someone considered to be of better calibre, and tive point of view and that therefore he had finally been rejected. Mr. McCulloch asked us if we could furnish them with a letter stating that we had found a better qualified candidate for the job in question and that rejection did not involve any question of loyalty. He felt that this would ease the situation materially in aiding to get other employment. Mr. 25X1/4 McCulloch pointed out that neither he nor the Senator ever desired to pressure agencies and CIA in particular for positions, and that therefore they forwarded such correspondence normally by buckslip. If the case ever involves someone concerning whom they had particularly favorable knowledge or felt particularly qualified, they would probably telephone or write	that family background, as well as his own background at the McCulloch asked us if we could furnish them with a letter stating that we had found a better qualified candidate for the job in question and that rejection did not involve any question of loyalty. He felt that this would ease the situation materially in aiding to get other employment. Mr. 25X1/McCulloch pointed out that neither he nor the Senator ever desired to pressure agencies and CIA in particular for positions, and that therefore they forwarded such correspondence normally by buckslip. If the case ever involves someone concerning whom they had particularly favorable knowledge or felt particularly qualified, they would probably telephone or write	made him a borderline case from an administra-	05.74
had found a better qualified candidate for the job in question and that rejection did not involve any question of loyalty. He felt that this would ease the situation materially in aiding to get other employment. Mr. 25X1/McCulloch pointed out that neither he nor the Senator ever desired to pressure agencies and CIA in particular for positions, and that therefore they forwarded such correspondence normally by buckslip. If the case ever involves someone concerning whom they had particularly favorable knowledge or felt particularly qualified, they would probably telephone or write	tive point of view and that therefore he had finally been rejected. Mr.	25X1P
had found a better qualified candidate for the job in question and that rejection did not involve any question of loyalty. He felt that this would ease the situation materially in aiding to get other employment. Mr. 25X1/McCulloch pointed out that neither he nor the Senator ever desired to pressure agencies and CIA in particular for positions, and that therefore they forwarded such correspondence normally by buckslip. If the case ever involves someone concerning whom they had particularly favorable knowledge or felt particularly qualified, they would probably telephone or write	McCulloch asked us if we could furnish them with a letter stating that we rejection did not involve any question of loyalty. He felt that this would ease the situation materially in aiding to get other employment. Mr. 25X1/McCulloch pointed out that neither he nor the Senator ever desired to pressure agencies and CIA in particular for positions, and that therefore they forwarded such correspondence normally by buckslip. If the case ever involves someone concerning whom they had particularly favorable knowledge or felt particularly qualified, they would probably telephone or write the situation materially in aiding to get other employment. Mr. 25X1/McCulloch pointed out that neither he nor the Senator ever desired to pressure agencies and CIA in particular for positions, and that therefore they forwarded such correspondence normally by buckslip. If the case ever involves someone concerning whom they had particularly favorable knowledge or felt particularly qualified, they would probably telephone or write		그 3
McCulloch pointed out that neither he nor the Senator ever desired to pressure agencies and CIA in particular for positions, and that therefore they forwarded such correspondence normally by buckslip. If the case ever involves someone concerning whom they had particularly favorable knowledge or felt particularly qualified, they would probably telephone or write	the situation materially in aiding to get other employment. Mr.	25X1A sure agencies and CIA in particular for positions, and that therefore they forwarded such correspondence normally by buckslip. If the case ever involves someone concerning whom they had particularly favorable knowledge or felt particularly qualified, they would probably telephone or write forwarded such correspondence normally by buckslip. If the case ever involves someone concerning whom they had particularly favorable know-ledge or felt particularly qualified, they would probably telephone or write involves someone concerning whom they had particularly favorable know- ledge or felt particularly qualified, they would probably telephone or write ledge or felt particularly qualified, they would probably telephone or write

2. I discussed with Mr. Spencer Platt, of the Bureau of the Budget, the question of an executive pay raise in general and pay increases for senior CIA officials in particular in view of the passage by the Congress of the Congressional pay bill which also raised the salaries of the Assistant Attorney Generals to $20,000 a year. (See Memorandum for the Record dated 3 March).

25X1A 25X1